Stowaways from Berlin

On a cold teutonic morning in May, Meredith Gaston put on her bonnet, packed up her easel and brushes and set off for Berlin Airport. She was hopping on a plane to Sydney for a few weeks of warm weather and painting. What fun!

As usual, she was accompanied by her good friends, Mr Moose and Mrs Swan, who were cuddled up cosily in her imagination. They loved each other's company in that fantasy land, Mr Moose and Mrs Swan, but by the time the plane landed and Meredith arrived at her studio, they were good and ready to wake up, skip down her arm, flow colourfully out of her brush and drape themselves over the waiting canvas. Even more fun!

Meredith's new paintings and watercolours, now available from Kindergallery, express the intimacy of this delightful couple and their friends. Whether enjoying a cup of tea together in the kitchen, or dreaming of each other across great oceans, they are always connected. We hope you love them as much as we do.
